

Subject: Your future self just sent you a reminder (and it's slightly disappointed)

Hi there,

Quick question:

When was the last time you did something just for yourself?

Not because you had to.

Not because someone reminded you.

Not because it was another item on your never-ending "I'll do it someday" list.

(Yes, we know that list. It has been sitting there longer than some friendships.)

The truth is, life gets busy.

Work piles up.

Responsibilities grow.

And somewhere between replying to emails and remembering passwords, taking care of yourself quietly moves to the bottom of the list.

But here's the thing:

You cannot pour from an empty cup, and unfortunately, your cup does not come with an automatic refill button.

That's why we created "BE ME".

A simple solution designed to help you slow down, reset, and create a routine that actually works for your life.

No complicated rules.

No unrealistic promises.

No "wake up at 4AM and become a millionaire by Tuesday" advice.

Just something practical, intentional, and made for real people.

Because taking care of yourself shouldn't feel like another chore.

It should feel like coming home.

Your future self will thank you.

(And honestly, they're tired of waiting.)

Warmly,
BE ME.
